Perks:

For each Background, their respective perks are half price with their -100CP being Free.

Status Free

All creatures within this world are connected to a leveling system, normally the system is only viewable by those who have appraisal magic with very few even being aware that the system exists, the effects of the system however are known but thought to be natural and not artificial. The system was created by the spirit of knowledge as a way to gain and spread information throughout the world and by extension it allowed the other spirits to gain and spread the knowledge of their own element.

The most well developed skills within this system are the magic skills, this is due to each spirit having administrative control over their own element and with exception of the spirit of knowledge the magic skill is their only responsibility within the system.

Due to the spirit of knowledge getting feedback from the system they are able to increase the list of potential skills to reflect the activities of all of the system's users, the sole requirement of this is that the spirit of knowledge is able to understand the task well enough to replicate within others the capabilities of the skill.

The soft cap for all skills and abilities are set to level 5 however this limit can be exceeded through special means such as gaining a contract with a magical spirit.

As an added bonus you will be able to see your own stats in the following format:

The spell rank can grow in jump by learning more about the attribute and training with the spells and magic.

If you pay -200CP you may instead roll 1d12 and receive the corresponding magic at rank 5 duplicate rolls are allowed to be rerolled.

Unlike other spells to access this you must have a connection with the corresponding spirit either through touching its Mana Stone or by already having made a contract with the spirit.

If you wish to correctly utilize this spell you must have a contract with the Spirit being summoned otherwise it is under no obligation to help you.

Drop in:

Magic power perception -100CP

Like the Devil-kin and Demon-kin you have the ability to feel the activation of magic in the air. With this perk you can perceive any magic activation and it's attribute with any of your senses or even set it as a new one. You can change what sense's you are using to detect magic power by intending to change it, post jump you can also change what types of energy you can sense so long as you have some control over that energy.

Composite Magic -200CP

You are able to combine different types of elemental magic that you are able to use into new spells. These spells will be stored within a new system skill called 【Composite Magic】. You may also be able to combine other types of energy together into a new spell even if you do not use magic for the combination.

Nullpo Empowerment -400CP

You can now bestow the effects of your spells skills and techniques onto nullpo stones allowing others to use abilities you have learned such as the Fus Ro Dah, Kioken, Total Concentration Breathing and even the effects of Stand Powers even it would normally be impossible for others to use that ability. If this perk is used in tandem with the magic stone replicating tool you can instead insert the effects of any of your perks into nullpo stones allowing whoever uses it to effectively gain that perk while using the stone.

Ritual of Skill Acceptance -600CP

Many worlds have their own unique forms of power and sometimes there isn't any jump that even acknowledges that power exists making it difficult and sometimes impossible to gain it flatbacked. Whenever you enter a jump this perk allows you to learn a ritual for each of the canon power systems. These rituals each grant the target a new Basic Package perk, this perk is the equivalent of the free perk that would be available if there was a jump focused solely on that system of power. (See Notes for example)

Hero:

The gift that gives back -100CP

You always know the right gift to give to others and what you will get back from it. You will know when you meet someone what they want the most both generally and specifically and what kind of benefits you could gain from giving those gifts to them. When using this perk on an item and thinking of a specific person you can see exactly what you will get in return, for example being able to see that if you give one liquor to the dwarven blacksmith, she will make you a sword but give her the almost identical one next to it and she will happily marry you. keep in mind this isn't a bribe, you're just giving someone something they see as valuable and them in turn being appreciative of it.

Close enough -200CP

Using this perk you can make substitutions and replace things or actions with something similar to get the same result. Do you need carrots for a potion parsnips will do, do you need to slay an evil beast, taming it will net the same reward, do you need to use rubies for a magical ritual, sapphires will work. The more dissimilar the substitute the less effective the result will be.

The friends you make along the way -400CP

You possess an odd social luck and plot armor as you are constantly able to meet people in a favorable way which makes you important to them. These people often turn out to have great importance both to the world and to the plot even those who normally don't would turn out to have high potential for skills and previously unknown plot points. Should you ever be the one in danger or your plans start to fail, one of these people will show up to help put events back in your favor.

A Hero's challenge -600CP

You can use this perk to demand any enemy set you up to three challenges within three days and set a demand for if you fail. None of these challenges will be things that you are morally opposed to or are completely impossible for you to fulfill.

For example if the holy grail exists they may ask for you to give them it, if the holy grail doesn't exist, acquiring it requires more than three days or you it requires you commit suicide to acquire it then they won't even think of asking you for it.

If you succeed in completing these challenges then your enemy will completely surrender to you. Should you fail any of the challenges your enemy will expect you to fulfill their demand but you are not compelled by the perk to do so. If you do refuse their demand you will not be able to use this perk for the remainder of the jump.

Noble:

No proof that it's true -100CP

You are the master of childish arguments and others are forced to take it seriously. You can argue non-sequesters and everyone will have to resolve them, you can demand visible proof of a crime before others can take action even if everyone has seen you commit the crime and as you don't actively lie any misconception you encourage will be believed.

Rules are for my benefit -200CP

Whenever you enter a competition you will be allowed to create one new rule which will act as a handicap for all the rest of the participants. This rule must make sense to the competition such as restricting equipment such as only using practice weapons in a martial arts contest or only using paddle boats in an ocean race. How this benefits you is you are automatically exempt from this new rule all other participants and organizers will think that this is fully justified and not consider it to give you any particular advantage.

First dibs -400CP

Whenever a new discovery is found be it a legendary weapon or a magical room within a dungeon you will gain priority access to it, should someone be in possession of rare objects of power you will be allowed to borrow it without restriction. As an added bonus you are always eligible to use magic items regardless of normal restrictions.

I don't grant permission -600CP

When it comes to authority you only have as much power as the other person grants you, with this perk other people subconsciously perceive your words as though it had come from the highest authority they follow. Your word alone is enough to maneuver an army out ranking almost all other leaders. Keep in mind that those who do not follow any authority or are anarchistic towards authority will reject you in the same way they would what they consider the highest authority.

Spirit:

Contract king -100CP [Mandatory to Spirit]

You can now form contracts with others granting them a spell that allows them to summon you from anywhere within the jump setting.

An element of my own -100CP

[Exclusive and Mandatory to Spirit]

If you haven't already, you must choose a magical attribute, you will then become the spirit of that element gaining administrative access to the corresponding magical skill within the system. This can be any type of attribute including Radiation, Heart, Wind and many more with you becoming a newly born spirit of that attribute however if you select an element with a pre-existing spirit you will instead retroactively replace them as the spirit of that attribute.

Magic Blueprints -200CP [Exclusive to Spirit]

You have complete understanding over this world's magic components that are used as the building blocks of spells and how they can be combined with your attribute. You also have an innate control over your attribute, understanding it both in nature and when it interacts with magic, this allows you to have both an instinctive and a technical understanding of that attribute. Using the two types of knowledge you will be able to easily create new spells related to your attribute, being able cast them without using magical power.

Comparable skill -400CP

With this perk you can easily apply skills and knowledge from other areas of development to skills and supernatural abilities. For example by knowing the mechanics of how fire functions at higher temperatures you could augment a simple fire spell which is similar to a lighter into a more powerful spell which functions like an acetylene torch. You could use lighting magic with the knowledge of modern electronics to make a lightning spell that functions as a lightbulb or with enough knowledge you could make another lightning spell that is able to function as more complex technology such as a television or computer.

Spirit union!! -600CP

Spirits are naturally able to fuse in order to become a merger of the two elements with combined strength and abilities. You are now capable of far more, being able to merge with any other entity for as long as is wanted, while being able to subconsciously separate whenever you want. With time and training you will be able to control not only how much of each entity takes dominance over the fused body but also increases how many entities can be fused together beyond the initial limit of yourself and one other entity.

Sword Smith of the Endless Trials

Any weapon you forge or use can have the【Endless Trials】 effect applied to it, this is an upgraded effect of the sword of trials. For anyone to complete the trial you must touch the weapon and it will then automatically upgrade, whenever the task is completed there will always be another trial for the weapon and its user to complete allowing for the weapon to forever grow.

System attributes explanation:

- Name should always be your own unless you have found a way to change it.
- Race will be whatever race you are currently also it is able to indicate the percentage of racial ancestry.
- Occupation is your actual method of employment. It is not a mechanical aspect of this system for most jumpers it should be stated as Jumper.
- Age is self explanatory however due to the unique temporal situation of a jumper it can be changed along a range between the longest and shortest arguable ages for the jumper including the physical age of the current body and the length of continuous thought.
- Level is the indicator of how many times the system has made improvements to your body. Each level requires a certain amount of experience points which is the used as fuel for the optimisation of muscles, skin, bones and various organs.
- HP is a statistical value of how your body is in comparison to your normal condition. This value is determined by a number of attributes including injuries, illness and general health. Please be aware that this value is determined by your health and not the other way around.
- MP is a statistical value of how much magical energy you body is able to use until you are exhausted.
- Power is most often related to physical strength in a default state but it is a more complex calculation which takes numerous other minor factors into account to determine the physical output of energy.
- Endurance is related the the durability of the physical form yet again it relies on numerous other minor factors but the can be considered the defense stat.
- Ability is more accurate to refer to as learning capability as it indicates how well your mind can absorb and retain information. Be warned this does not indicate a person's intelligence but that can be one of the factors for the calculation.
- Magical Power is a representation of how well you can control magical energy.
- Skills this is a list of abilities that the various spirits understand and are able to grant the knowledge to others who are using the system. This list is constantly growing as the spirit of knowledge is able to learn from the users of the system over time.

Ritual of Skill Acceptance:

If used in a JoJo Jump you would be guaranteed to learn the rituals to gain at least the following perks:

- “Basic Package: Hamon”
You can use breathing patterns to absorb the light of the sun to empower your body.
- “Basic Package: Vampire”

You gain some regenerative abilities, blood-sucking tentacles and some control over your physical appearance.

- “Basic Package: Piller Man”
You gain greater control over your body and can absorb flesh on contact by fusing and digesting it with a touch.
- “Basic Package: Stand”
This perk grants you a large spiritual egg covered in strange patterns, with enough fighting spirit it may hatch into a Stand.
- “Basic Package: Spin”
When throwing objects you can spin them such a way that it enhances the destructive power of the projectile.

You would also gain access to rituals for any of the systems of power shown within “Thus Spoke Kishibe Rohan” assuming that they are not examples of the systems already noted above I.E. you would not get a ritual for Hermes system if it turned out to be a stand and would not get a ritual for Gunpei if it turned out to be a Variation of a Vampire Flesh Bud.

Depending on the level of continuity of the Jorge Joestar Book you could also gain a ritual for “Basic Package: Wound” and “Basic Package: Beyond”

Close enough perk energy conversion:

For those who are asking, can this perk also apply to substituting stamina, Ki, Chi, Blood, Life force or even a bottle of petrol for mana?

Yes, internal energies such as Ki should have an effective conversion rate however the amount of “I can’t believe it’s not mana!” that you would get from body fluids and life force would depend on the local laws of physics.

For example the dragon age universe already has a precedent that there is magical power in blood that would allow you to convert blood into mana efficiently. On the other hand the blackadder universe has no precedent of this conversion so the conversion rate would be much lower. (unless you subscribe to the school of thought that blackadder is cannon to the 40k universe)

By this logic you can convert a mug of blood into “I can’t believe it’s not mana!” but within a non magic world and without supporting perks this would probably not be enough to cast a low level spell but doing it in dragon age with supporting perks would probably let you cast high level magic.

For the purchased sword you get 1 set of 6 trials but it's flat backed so the bonus is flat backed. You only get 1 flat backed sword per purchase but once you complete the scenario you can make your own. All trials must be completed in jump to win the prize but if you have purchased the sword separately it can still be upgraded out of jump by completing the trials.
