

You Are The Jump-Chan

v.0.9

Well, this is certainly unusual. Usually, this wouldn't be possible until after you gained your spark, but you've somehow gained the chance to host your very own jumper on their journey!

Your time here is very likely to last longer than ten years. But not to worry: Here are plenty of options to keep things fresh. Or maybe your guest will be able to entertain you sufficiently?

+1000 CP

Your goal in this jump is not to survive for ten years. That would be trivial. Your goal in this jump is to ensure that your guest survives their ten years and beyond, all the way until they gain their spark. Don't worry about your guest deciding they want to go home, or stay in some random universe. They will only ever move on, or attempt their end jump. Unless they die, in which case you failed your chain and are returned home.

-X-X- Origins -X-X-

All Origins count as Drop-In.

Your Age (If it applies) , Gender (If it applies) , and Species (If it applies) may be chosen freely:

Any Species chosen/created may be kept as an alt-form but is purely cosmetic

0 CP Jump-Chan

Sometimes nice, sometimes mean. Sometimes helpful, sometimes not. You gain the standard Jump-chan package: A mysterious being who follows no understandable rhyme or reason. You can best be described as Erratic. You're a lot of fun, though! Your jumper likely has a respectful relationship with you.

0 CP Serious-Chan

You aren't here for fun and games, you're here for business. When dealing with limitless power, proper respect and responsibility must be observed. You aren't a party pooper, you can still enjoy things. You simply know what's important, and that there's a time and place for eccentric behavior. Exchanges between yourself and your jumper are generally short, but your jumper is much more likely to listen to any suggestions you may make.

0 CP Chibi-Chan

Jump? What's that taste like? Oh, is Dr. Manhattan inside your warehouse? I don't remember him being a companion. Ohh, he's hunting you from three jumps back? That's hilarious! Here, let me shoo him out. Take the whimsy of Jump-Chan and crank that to 11. What's the point of taking things seriously when there's nobody around that's worth being serious about? Entertainment is your number one goal, and your jumper knows it. Just expect your jumper to take any of your suggestions with a grain of salt.

0 CP Sadist-Chan

You're the exact opposite of Chibi-Chan in every way. You're not here for fun, you're here for power. And what brings the most power if not hardship? If you have a pleasant side, you will not be showing it to your jumper. Instead, your jumper is likely to hate you, and will actively avoid listening to any suggestions or comments you make. Conversely, they will also be the most self-sufficient and competent version of themselves possible. After all, if a cosmic-tier being such as yourself is out to get them, a little caution is only natural.

Note: Sadist-Chan is all about providing a challenge, not actively hindering your jumper. Not that your jumper is aware of that.

-X-X- The Jumper -X-X-

Your success or failure in this jump is reliant on more than just your own competence. Luckily for you, this isn't left entirely to chance.

You Can twist and twist the jumpchain rules until they're almost unrecognizable, but you must follow them. You can tweak powers and meanings as you like, but you can't directly interfere with your jumper's progress. You can maintain the sanctity of their warehouse, but you can't actively defend your jumper or help them escape danger. You can make comments and suggestions as you will, but you can't make any final decisions for your jumper.

That being said, Pick your Jumper!

+800 CP Suicidal Jumper

Your Jumper is, simply put, an idiot. They will gladly take Scaling drawbacks in settings they're unfamiliar with and not even have a plan ahead of time. If there's any synergy in their perks, you don't see it. Your only real hope of success are out of jump powers or if you somehow convince them to pick up a competent companion. Even then, it will be an uphill battle.

+200 CP Human? Jumper

Your Jumper isn't even human?! They're just a mundane animal. If you don't have any way to speak to animals, you will gain the ability to send and receive basic thoughts and ideas for this jump only. While this may be overcome within a few jumps, this WILL cause issues starting out.

+100 CP Boring Jumper

There's nothing wrong with your jumper at all. In fact, if you're looking to simply make sure your jumper succeeds, your jumper is one of the better choices for it. It's just.. Why is your jumper picking up peak human sword fighting talent when they already have omnicompetence? Why are they picking up their 20th fast recovery perk when they already have a wolverine-tier healing factor? Why do they have 53 vanity perks? HOW do they have 53 vanity perks. WHY DIDN'T THEY SPARK OUT 200 JUMPS AGO. You're going to be here a long, long time.

-100 CP/+1000 CP Jump-Chan Jumper

There's such a thing as TOO meta. Your Jumper is not a Jumper at all. In fact your Jumper is actually your very own benefactor in disguise. While this is almost guaranteed to be a victory for you, don't think this is going to be a cake walk. Your Jumper is going to find this situation hilarious and milk it for all its worth. Expect to be constantly made fun of, have your Jumper reenact embarrassing moments of your chain inside jumps, and in general be a major nuisance.

If your benefactor is antagonistic towards you, take +1000 CP, instead, and expect them to do everything in their power to ensure you fail. Considering that all they have to do to make you fail is to die in jump, this will be near impossible to avoid.

(If you don't have a benefactor for your current chain, you can invite a guest benefactor for this jump to take advantage of either choice from this option)

+0 CP The Jumper

Take a random poster from Reddit, Spacebattles, or 4chan. Congratulations, you have your new Jumper.

-100 CP The Competent Jumper

Failure is not an option. Your Jumper knows this. They will actively make intelligent, informed decisions, and will likely succeed without any help or interference from yourself. It will probably take them less than 10 jumps, too.

+300 CP Mary/Gary Sue Jumper

This is your Mary Sue. But this Mary Sue isn't the sunshine and rainbows, make everyone happy Sue. No, instead, this Mary Sue is going to stack every charisma modifier and loyalty perk possible. Also, any immunity you have is gone. Make sure they spark up fast, before it's too late. Take too long and you're never going to want to leave.

+600 CP Psycho Jumper

Your Jumper is going to spark up. That is a fact. There's absolutely nothing that will stop this from happening. The only problem is that your jumper is a little loose in the head. Morality, Loyalty, Basic Decency - None of that matters to them, only power. Their decisions in their jumps and perks reflect this. That might not be a problem with you, but it should. You see, Once Psycho Jumper gains their spark, you won't be leaving immediately. Instead you get to fight Psycho Jumper to the death. Losing means a chain failure. You can only continue on with your victory.

-X-X- PERKS -X-X-

Jump-Chan Perks

-100 CP, Free Jump-Chan That Isn't Yours

You no longer rely on external sources for any of your abilities. Your perks/powers are now innate to your existence.

-200 CP, Discount Jump-Chan Jump chan is _____?

When a perk/power would change your mentality, personality, or mental state, you may choose to ignore it.

Additionally, if you do decide to allow a change in your mentality, personality, or mental state, you make a backup of your current self to decide if the changes are acceptable. This “backup you” can persist until it dismisses itself, or you decide to make yet another change to yourself. This “backup self” is intangible and a part of your mind. The “backup self” is capable of reverting your mind at any time. The “backup self” is not afraid of it’s own personal character death and has your best interests at heart.

-400 CP, Discount Jump-Chan Jump-Chan Is More Than Just _____!

You may ignore any personal prerequisites to use any perk/power. You don’t need a pure heart to ride a flying nimbus. You don’t need to kill someone to make a horcrux. You don’t need to worship a God to use their blessings. You don’t need to stay passive on the sidelines to gain increased luck.

Note that this only bypasses personal prerequisites for using an ability, it does not remove any material or resource requirements.

-600 CP, Discount Jump-Chan You Don’t Need That

You can freely adjust the potency of any and all perks and powers you have.

Additionally, you can temporarily sacrifice any of your perks/powers to temporarily reduce a similar ability of someone else by the same amount.

Serious-Chan Perks

-100 CP, Free Serious-Chan I Taught Myself

You have a basic understanding and competency with any and all of your perks/powers.

-200 CP, Discount Serious-Chan Everyone Puts Up A Front

When a perk/power would change your mentality, personality, or mental state, you may choose to ignore it.

Additionally, You may create alternate personalities of yourself that you can design and switch to/from freely. Your original personality is always in control of which personality is “in the driver’s seat”.

-400 CP, Discount Serious-Chan Physics Isn’t Negotiable

When the metaphysics of your perks/powers is in direct conflict with another’s metaphysics, your perk/powers trumps it.

-600 CP, Discount Serious-Chan Did You Think I Wouldn’t Take You Seriously?

You can freely adjust the potency of any and all perks and powers you have.

Additionally, You can decide to temporarily sacrifice the potency of any of your perks/powers to temporarily gain twice the potency at a later time. The Longer you maintain the sacrifice, the longer you can keep the boost. This is at a 7:1 ratio that caps at one full day of boost for one full week of sacrifice.

You can use/combine/ignore any and all abilities, drawbacks, and appearances of all your alt-forms.

When a perk/power would change your mentality, personality, or mental state, you may choose to ignore it.

Additionally, you may choose to ignore any change in mentality, personality, or mental state from any other source as well.

-400 CP, Discount Chibi-Chan Square Peg In A Round Hole

You can freely combine any perks/powers/items into new perks/powers/items at the cost of the old. Any Items protected by fiat lose that protection, but the new item gains the protection instead. If you want to combine all 53 of your vanity perks into one? Go for it, the resulting perk will even be slightly greater than the sum of its parts. If you have a perk to heal yourself when you eat food and a perk to shoot fireballs, feel free to eat fire to heal yourself. You can even apply your perks to your items and vice versa. Keep in mind that the original version is lost.

-600 CP, Discount Chibi-Chan Where Did This Perk Go Again?
