

WINLAND SAGA ヴァインランド・サガ

By: Regretnotor256

This is Northern Europe, circa 1008. The Danes and the English are currently stuck in a lengthy war, the age of the Vikings is still going strong, and Leif Erikson has recently discovered the new world. You enter just as Thors and a group of young men begin their voyage out from Iceland, and Askeladd and Floki plot their ambush. This era of history is one of brutality and great cruelty, but also of hope for peace and of striving for a better way of life. It's up to you whether you fight the harsh reality of this world or accept it.

You have been given [1000 CP] in order to make it through this era.

Backgrounds

Your age and gender may be anything you choose

[Free] Drop In: You enter this world with no previous history and without any additional memories holding you back.

[Free] Viking: Raider, mercenary, warrior, you are known by many different names, but ultimately, you are a person who lives and dies for battle and gold.

[Free] Sailor: Perhaps you are an associate of Lief Erikson. You are an explorer or merchant who, either way, makes their living on the rivers and seas of the world.

[200 CP] Royal: Oh, you're someone of some real consequence, eh? You are a royal of some note, able to pull strings and make political plays in this era of feudal monarchies. You may choose what country you are a royal of.

Locations

The year is currently 1008 AD

You may choose where you start freely, or gain 100 CP and roll 1d8 for one of these locations.

- 1.) Iceland: One of the northmost lands the Scandinavians have settled, this land is populated mostly by small settlements and is currently home to Thors, the once greatest warrior of the Jomsvikings.
- 2.) Danelaw: Land in Britain currently occupied or colonized by the Danes, this area is a hotbed of conflict due to the ongoing invasion of England and Wales.
- 3.) England: The remaining lands still held by the English and Welsh. During your time in this jump, these lands will be ravaged by war and the city of London will be besieged.
- 4.) Denmark: Currently the greatest power in the North Sea, Denmark is home to the Jomsvikings and other such groups.
- 5.) Normandy: A part of northern France, Normandy suffered constant raids until it was eventually settled by vikings in 911 AD, and now acts as an influential French duchy.
- 6.) Baltics: You may choose to start in Novgorod or amongst the early Lithuanians. The rivers in these lands are often used by vikings to travel deeper inland as far as the Byzantine Empire.
- 7.) Vinland: An entirely new land discovered merely a few years ago, these lands are rich in resources, and is a place considered a new land of opportunity, for either starting anew or more sinister purposes.
- 8.) Free Choice: Lucky you! Choose anywhere on Earth, including places not on this list to be your starting location.

General Perks

All perks are 50% off for their origin, with 100 CP perks being free, unless stated otherwise.

[Free/100 CP] Medieval Trade: You are now knowledgeable in one mundane medieval style trade, anything from blacksmithing to farming is available. Each additional trade costs 100 CP

[100 CP] Aesthetic: If you like this art style, you may take it with you to other worlds. With this option, you may toggle a world to have the same look as the world of Vinland Saga.

[200 CP] Priest: You are now well educated in one religion to the point you could be considered a priest/priestess for it. Additionally, you are capable of easily converting people to your chosen religion with surprising speed.

[200 CP] Hearing: Your hearing is now superhuman. When you focus, you can hear an army moving miles away, and closer auditory details are easily caught by you. Ambushing you would be a supremely difficult task.

[400 CP] Inventor: Your mind now has an intuitive understanding of mechanics and engineering, alongside the knowledge of how to advance it. Even with nothing to work with, you could advance the technological level of places you visit decades in advance in a fraction of the time.

[400 CP] Skilled Fighter: Your combat proficiency is now on par with that of Thorfinn in his youth, with the agility to boot. You can scale walls and take out their defenders with the same ease a normal person would have jogging.

[600 CP] Superhuman: You now have the inhuman strength and stature of Thorkell the Tall, moreso like a human artillery piece, throwing tree trunks like spears, and spears like artillery strikes. With your strength, you are capable of holding off entire medieval armies on your own.

Drop-In Perks

[100 CP] Willpower: You now have an insane amount of resolve and willpower. Getting beaten to a pulp would see you not strike back once and break your ideals if you're a pacifist. Additionally, this willpower vastly increases your pain tolerance, enough to shrug off having bits of your body cut off with little issue.

[200 CP] Moving On: It's likely that you've done some bad things, but with this perk, you will be able to come to terms with what you've done, no matter what that was, and even more than that, paths to legitimate redemption and forgiveness are as easy to find as simply looking for atonement.

[400 CP] Roll with the Punches: You can take one hell of a beating. You now understand how to minimize damage to yourself when taking hits, to the point that getting punched in the face over and over would see the guy hitting you in worse shape from exhaustion than you from the beating.

[600 CP] True Warrior: A true warrior, according to Thors and later his son, is someone who can defeat their enemies without the need for violence. You are now a true warrior. No matter what situation you find yourself in, you will be able to find a peaceful resolution. Some resolutions will be harder to come to than others, but no matter what, a peaceful route will always be possible.

Viking Perks

[100 CP] Specialized Combat: You know how to use a weapon of your choice to a level that you could reasonably be considered an expert in it, whether you are a swordsman, bowman, or something more exotic.

[200 CP] Loyalty: You now have the ability to inspire loyalty in soldiers. With each victory, this loyalty will strengthen, and at its maximum, your men will follow you through a harsh winter in enemy lands while being chased by a superior force for a full year without breaking.

[400 CP] Killing Intent: Vikings are feared throughout Europe, and now you will be as well. You may, with a look, instill in a person a primal terror so great that lesser men's minds will completely shatter, and those of great wills will pause before fighting you.

[600 CP] Conniving Bastard: You have a knack for plotting on par with Askeladd himself, capable of maneuvering and strategizing to the point you could become a king's retainer based solely on manipulation. Additionally, you have a proficiency with leading men and in medieval warfare tactics.

Sailor Perks

[100 CP] Sailor: You are now proficient in the role of your choice on a ship to the point that you would be renowned for this skill.

[200 CP] Storyteller: You are able to perfectly regale tales of your adventures in entertaining and interesting ways, with most people fully believing your story so long as the story you are telling is actually the truth.

[400 CP] Merchant: You know how to sell goods, maintain trading networks, nodes, and caravans, strike deals, haggle and other essential mercantile skills at a level most would struggle to keep up with.

[600 CP] Explorer: You are an expert navigator, and have a supernatural sense of where you want to go. Any ship you are on or expedition you lead will go incredibly smoothly, anything from first contact with the natives, to consistent pleasant weather, to few disease or food related issues are the norm when you are at the helm.

Royal Perks

[100 CP] Looks: Your appearance can be any type that you want, elderly, cute, handsome, or weak. This does not affect anything but how you look, which can be great for hiding your strength, and can be drastically changed once every 5 years.

[200 CP] Fearless: You are now completely unflinchingly fearless. You would be unfazed by the terror perk from the viking perk section, able to think and act clearly no matter the situation. You may still feel fear if you wish, but it will no longer freeze you or mess with your head.

[400 CP] Unity: When you conquer a people, you know how to expertly quell or ease any separatist sentiment, though people will not rebel based on issues of separatism, that does not exclude other reasons for rebellion.

[600 CP] Kingship: Any lands under your rule now experience internal golden ages. You can expect plentiful harvests, inventors becoming more prominent, and for plagues to quell down faster. Additionally, you now have a keen mind for kingship, able to work within and around a feudal system expertly for the benefit of your nation.

General Items

-All items are 50% off for their origin, with 100 CP items being free, unless stated otherwise.

-You Receive [400 CP] for items only

[Free/50 CP] Clothing: A set of clothes of your choice as seen in Vinland Saga. Self cleaning and self repairing. Extras cost 50 CP

[100 CP] Weapon: A common weapon of any design, ranged or melee, from this era. It is extremely durable and will return to you whenever it is lost. Examples would be a longbow or an ax.

[100 CP] Banquet: A large banquet table on which you may make enough food for a dozen men appear with just a wave of your hands. Can be used daily. Defaults to cuisine of the viking age, but may be changed for any type you desire each day.

[100 CP] Armor/Shield: A set of either chainmail or gambison, with a helmet and a round shield. This armor is sturdy enough to tank a good chunk of damage from a few arrows or blows from blades, and repairs weekly.

[200 CP] Horse: A surprisingly fast, loyal, and sturdy steed, this horse is intelligent enough to understand very basic instructions, and can travel miles without rest. Can be any breed you want.

[200 CP] Treasure: Takes the form of gold coins, jewelry, and art made of precious metals. This is worth about 250 Troy Pounds of gold, or around 5 million US dollars.

[400 CP] Farming Land: You now own land that is considered a regional breadbasket, capable of feeding a massive population. This scales based on the setting you find yourself in. For example, in 40k, it could be an agri-world capable of feeding several star systems, while in this setting, it can feed much of Scandinavia. You may decide what kind of food your land produces and in what ratios. Comes staffed by followers.

[500 CP] Vinland: Not necessarily Vinland, but a massive expanse of rich land and nature completely unexplored and untainted by war. You may decide if this land has people already there or if it is uninhabited, though the people are not beholden to you. Either way, this land will scale based on what jump you are in in the same way that the farm item scales. This expanse is about the size of northeastern Canada, with flora, fauna, and climate being customizable to a degree.

Drop-In Items

[100 CP] Engraved Dagger: This dagger's most useful property is strangely not related to killing, but rather its ability to give you a massive boost in willpower and remind you of where you started.

[200 CP] Reloading Crossbow: Capable of holding several bolts at once, and firing just as hard as the average crossbow, this weapon is more than likely the most advanced thing in this world at this time.

[400 CP] Homestead: This little homestead in an aesthetic of your choice will always remain hidden from those you desire to keep away, and is located in a naturally beautiful area that you will personally enjoy. While here you will generally be at peace. The homestead itself is large enough for several people to reside in it, and comes with a plot of land suitable for any type of farming and capable of keeping you self-sufficient. Comes with modern amenities should you desire them.

[600 CP] Peaceful Settlement: This small settlement is completely away from the misery of the world at large. War will never find this small secluded place, nor will disease or famine. This remote little piece of paradise could be described as heaven built on earth. This does not mean the people there will grow weak, complacent, or naive, however. This effect can expand up to 1,000 square miles, and support several thousand people.

Viking Items

[100 CP] Berserker Mushrooms: These hallucinogenic mushrooms have the strange ability to increase your strength three times over, no matter how strong you initially were. Additionally, they give you insane combat endurance, able to fight well beyond what your physical limit should be. The unfortunate side effect is that you lose all cognitive abilities until the effect wears off.

[200 CP] Contacts: You have allies all across a large region of your choice, and can call in minor favors like lodging or food, but once a year can call in a major favor like providing ships to flee the local area to somewhere offshore.

[400 CP] Askellad's Armor: This armor, though only covering your chest, is something incredibly impressive. Capable of tanking small arms fire, and essentially being unbreakable by any weapons found in 1000 AD Europe. Strangely, it seems to protect the rest of your body as well, with most attacks landing on the armor instead of you.

[600 CP] Army: You now have a band of warriors that will follow you here and into more jumps. Gives access to the army builder subsection with full points. May be purchased once.

Sailor Items

[100 CP] Goods: You now have access to an annually replenishing stock worth $1,000,000 of common goods considered common to the setting you are in. For example, in this setting it could be iron or wheat, or phones or computers in a modern setting. May be changed once every ten years, or until the start of the next jump, whichever comes first.

[200 CP] Market: This trading hub may start small, but quickly attracts merchants who can have anything you could possibly want to sell or buy, from food to jewelry. You may decide what you want to be sold at your market, so you don't have to allow the slave trade of this time to operate out of your new hub of commerce.

[400 CP] Explorer's Ship: This ship is capable of amazing things. It updates to be the most advanced exploratory vessel in the setting, and has a supernatural ability to take you to fantastic new places, even if the setting seems fully explored. For example, in the 1920s, it could become an arctic exploration vessel to map out the arctic, or a starship to find new worlds in Star Trek.

[600 CP] Mercantile Empire: You now own an economic empire which brings in immense amounts of wealth from all over the known world, and is made up of expert merchant and sailor followers as well as dozens of mercantile ships. Fully staffed by followers.

Royal Items

[100 CP] Crown: Heavy is the head that wears the crown. While this may be true, at least with outward appearances you will look like the perfect ruler. Anyone who sees you wear this crown will instinctually acknowledge you as a ruler of good quality.

[200 CP] Hall: A mighty and large viking age style hall, which comes with all the amenities such a place should have. Comes fully staffed and is capable of supporting dozens of guests at any given moment.

[400 CP] Castle: While not as large as a castle of stone, this fortress is based off of the tonbridge castle, and is surprisingly defensible, with morale being unbreakable within the walls. This fortress scales to be formidable no matter the setting it finds itself in, upgrading its tech and defenders accordingly.

[600 CP] [Royal Exclusive] Blessing of the Crown: It turns out that you aren't just royalty, but actually the ruler of a country. You now have access to the nation and army builder subsection. May be purchased once.

Companions Companions may be given extra CP at a rate of 1:2

[Free/50/100 CP] Import/Create/Recruit Companions: You may either import or create up to 8 companions for 50 CP per companion, with each companion gaining 400 CP to spend on themselves. You may recruit companions for free, but must pay 100 CP for the more powerful characters. Companions do not get the item stipend.

[100 CP/Free Drop-in] Commoner: This friendly and lively commoner has decided that they want to join you on your travels. Surprisingly crafty for someone who is uneducated, they unfortunately have little experience outside of their local land, and are naive of the rest of the world, but curious to see it. Comes with the perks [Medieval Trade] and [Inventor].

[100 CP/Free Viking] Right Hand: This warrior is a veteran of dozens of raids, battles, and more, and above all else is loyal to you to a fault. Considered an inspiring presence on any field, they are the best subordinate you could ask for, with their normally laid back joking personality hiding their lethal skill and coldness once the battle has started. Comes with the perks [Specialized Combat], [Loyalty], and the [Weapon] and [Armor/Shield] items.

[100 CP/Free Sailor] Apprentice: This energetic and entrepreneurial youth has decided they want to learn from the best, and consider that to be you. They are highly curious, and seem to hang on to every bit of advice you give as if it were gold. Comes with the perk [Sailor] and will have [Merchant] by 4 years.

[100 CP/Free Royal] Advisor: This young advisor is renowned for their calculating personality, and their incredible stoicism. The only person they seem to take a shine to or show any emotion around is you, acting like an older sibling or close friend more than a subordinate. Comes with [Fearless] and [Kingship].

[100 CP] Upgrade: You may use this to upgrade the original companions.

- The Commoner seems to have actually owned the land they worked on, now having the [Farm] and [Homestead] items.

- The Right Hand is a more skilled warrior and more connected, with 2 more purchases of [Specialized Combat] and [Contacts].

- The Apprentice now is an ally in charge of their own mercantile empire, adding [Mercantile Empire] and [Market].

- The Advisor is now a vassal lord, with [200 NP] to spend in the Nation Builder, the [Hall] item, and the [Treasure] Item.

[200 CP] Troll: An unparalleled warrior in this time, standing around 6-7 feet tall, with strength and agility beyond what normal people should even be capable of, and truly a terrifying presence to their enemies, which is surprising given their incredibly kind and friendly demeanor towards those they consider friends, which you are now one of. This warrior's nickname is "Troll" inherited from the previous owner of the title, but is embarrassed at being known by such a monstrous moniker. Comes with [Skilled Fighter], [Superhuman], and [Killing Intent]

Drawbacks

[0 CP] End of the Prologue: If you wish to see this story in full, or see different parts of it, this toggle will allow you to extend your stay indefinitely and/or start your time in this jump after the prologue.

[100 CP] Alcoholic: You are a severe alcoholic, who will constantly look for a drink. The upside to this is that you now have a strong tolerance for alcohol

[200 CP] Bug Eyes: The universe has decided you are now comedic relief. You are rarely taken seriously by anyone around you, and worse yet, any fights you get into end in comedic failure for you.

[200 CP] True Warrior: You are now a strict adherent to pacifist ideals, and cannot use violence to achieve any goal no matter the circumstances you find yourself in.

[200 CP] Slave: You are now property of a master of a similar disposition to Ketil. They have given you an incredibly difficult task, such as clearing a forest for farmland, and once it is done, they will give you your freedom. This task cannot be completed via use of anything other than your mundane capabilities. This task will take a year minimum to complete

[200 CP] Revenge: You are hellbent on getting revenge on a single person in this setting. You are willing to throw away your life and any morality in order to kill this person.

[200/400 CP] Mandatory Tag-along: Fate will conspire to constantly have you meet up with Thorfinn and crew throughout his journey. You can run all you want, but you will somehow always end up back with them. The bad part is that you cannot circumvent any conflicts that were encountered in the story, as fate will make sure these events happen regardless while constantly roping you into them. Lasts 5 years per purchase. May be purchased twice.

[300 CP] Guilt: You have a mixture of intense guilt and PTSD that will continually give you nightmares about the bad things you've done throughout your life. These can be mitigated somewhat by atonement, but never completely removed. As a silver lining, it will not make you suicidal.

[300 CP] Fun to Fight: Thorkell has decided you are a fun person to fight, and will chase you to the ends of the earth looking for a fight to the death. No army, hired soldiers, or companions will be able to stop him, no matter how good they are. The fight must be ended by either you killing him or him killing you.

[400 CP] Curse of the Crown: While not necessarily the same madness that had begun to plague king Sweyn, this mental degradation is unstoppable, and will continually worsen as the jump goes on. It can be anything from dementia to growing schizophrenia.

[200/400/500 CP] Powerless: You either have had either your out of jump powers or items stripped from you. For an additional 200 CP, it is both. For another 100 CP, your warehouse is now inaccessible.

Scenarios

Failure in a scenario will not constitute chain failure, however you will not gain the rewards that you would have on a successful completion of a scenario.

Vinland Saga

Like Thorfinn, your goal in this scenario is to establish a settlement away from the strife and conflict of the Old World, somewhere people can be free and happy. In order to achieve success in this scenario, you must establish a colony/settlement somewhere and keep it at peace for the entirety of the jump. You may choose to either aid Thorfinn, or attempt to set this up on your own. Your settlement may be established anywhere you wish. Assuming you have successfully completed this scenario, your rewards are as follows.

Settlement: You may take this settlement into future worlds along with its people as followers. The settlement keeps any upgrades to it, and works as a far weaker version of the Peaceful Settlement item. Additionally, you are now an expert in all the skills needed to establish a civilization/colony in any environment.

The Viking Invasion

The war between the Scandinavians and the English rages on, with no signs of an end any time soon. Your goal in this scenario is to either aid the Scandinavian forces in their conquest of England, occupying the entirety of the country, or aid the English forces in repelling all of the Norsemen's forces from their land, and then keeping them out. These objectives must be achieved by the end of the jump. Assuming you have successfully completed this scenario's objectives, the side you chose will give you different rewards.

Sword of Scandinavia: Assuming you aided the Scandinavians in the war, your rewards are as follows: When participating in an offensive war, your forces will rarely suffer from attrition or logistical issues when in hostile territory, and will win sieges and break defenses in half the time it should have taken.

Shield of England: Assuming you aided the English in the war, your rewards are as follows: When participating in a defensive war, enemy forces within your territory suffer from severe attrition rates and other logistical problems, and your fortresses and defenses will take twice as long to break than they normally should.

Quest for the New World

Just think of what amazing things could lie beyond that great western ocean. Perhaps you are one of the few bold and willing enough to find out. Your goal in this scenario is to set foot somewhere Europeans in this time have never been before. Some examples of this could be traveling to sub-Saharan Africa, somewhere in The New World barring Vinland, East Asia, or even the Pacific. Either way, you must achieve this without using item or power based transportation methods, and must achieve this by the end of the jump. Assuming you have successfully completed this scenario, your reward is as follows.

Jumper the Lucky: Like Lief Erikson's nickname might suggest, you are incredibly lucky in your expeditionary adventures, stumbling across fantastic discoveries is a near guarantee with every major expedition you take part in. With this, you could come across amazing things such as a lost city like Machu Picchu or an incredibly friendly tribe of people who are willing to share their culture with you. In a sci-fi setting, you could find a lush paradise world or even a lost alien megastructure.

The Jumper Era

In our history, the Viking era was defined by its namesake and these people had a several century long impact on history and massive ramifications based solely on their achievements, influence, impact, and even their failings. Your goal is for historians to not look back on the viking era as being defined by vikings, but instead as one defined by you or your organization. You must complete this task by the time this jump ends. Your reward upon completion is as follows.

Relics of a Bygone Era: In future jumps you will find artifacts, murals, stories, and even remains of structures related to your exploits in previous jumps. This does not affect local setting history, and people do not find the existence of these artifacts strange or alarming.

Ending:

You've made it to the end. Congratulations! Now it's time to make that same old choice.

Stay: You can choose to stay in this age of vikings if you like. Hopefully you changed it for the better.

Go Home: Tired of all these crazy adventures? Well, if that's the case, you can finally return home.

Move On: Just imagine what new lands there are waiting to be found out there! You can always move on to the next jump.
