Those Espers who gain their abilities without the aid of special scientific instruments, whether at birth, are referred to as Gemstones. Others, known as Magicians, gain their powers upon mastering the power of magic, either from obtaining knowledge from different mythologies or by using mystical artifacts, though the existence of magicians is a secret to the public. While Magicians align themselves with different beliefs, Espers are aligned with scientific institutions. It creates a thin field of AIM around you, which allows you to manipulate the vector values of anything you touch or around you. The passive effect that you do not need conscious control, may deflect or redirect bullets that strike you or the pressure wave of an explosion without requiring you're awareness of the threat and many more. The active effect of the ability requires active calculations in order to maintain it, as even a slight error can nullify the effect but it can allow you manipulate vectors instead of redirecting them.

The material that you create defies the Laws of Physics, which can produce twenty-five thousand different types of energy. The substance can apparently shape into any form you desire. Moreover, they are capable of detecting other Electromaster if there isn't any interference.

Meltdowner

It allows you to forcibly control electrons in the ambiguous state of an electron where it is both particle and wave, and when they strike other objects the electrons are unable to react either as particle or a wave because of their state. The ability usually takes on the form of a high-speed beam of light that can easily melt through thick metal walls and cause things like refined alcohol to explode with its heat alone. Another radical application of this is limbs and by emitting a power similar to a rocket, it can perform high-speed evasion that is fast enough to escape an explosion.

Mental Out

It allows you to control human mind which includes mental control, reading other people's memories, telepathy, changing a person's personality, willpower and memory destruction, revelation and transplantation of emotions, brainwashing, and psychometry. It can also prevent the use of powers, movement, and even sense of pain of other people. You can also take-over a person and use their body to interact with other people in long distance.

Imagine Breaker

It allows you to dispel and negate any abilities and powers with the exception of leylines and those attacks and effects that have sufficient power backing it at minimum you can dispel and negate anything equal and below an Angel Class being along with it being useless to anything made naturally like bullets or boulders. This power resides within your righting hand or the closest representation of a right hand to you and should it be removed you may choose to let the invincible thing that powers it to manifest as dragons to defeat your opponents in the vicinity or maybe use it to re-grow your arm. This power can also remove the red string of fate of anyone of touch and should you take this with Imagine Resistance would merge together and upgrade itself allowing your skintight barrier to dispel and negate a full frontal attack from True Gremlin Magic Gods, One hundred Percent Othinus and Aiwaass. Though hurting them is a different matter.

However the true goal of alchemic branch of magic is to model everything in the world. One of these teachings is that alchemy is not only that of turning lead into gold, but also a process in which one can make a natural body into perfection, the process being called Magnum opus or Ars Magna – put another way, that humans are incomplete gods and through training and making one complete, humans can become gods.
