

The Elder Scrolls: Undead

By Pokebrat_J

Immortality.

The ultimate goal of many mortals too afraid, or arrogant, to accept their own mortality, that their time on this world will eventually come to an end. A foolish notion, that one can be above entropy, but that doesn't mean that fools don't try. A common avenue is pursuing undeath. The study of life and death is quite common if one seems a way to escape Arkay's cycle, something you seem to have done.

Yes, you have joined those unholy ranks and have become undead. But the manner in which you have achieved your Undeath is up in the air for questioning, as is what you gained from it besides just your immortality.

You receive 1000 cp to determine how your newfound undeath has affected you.

Undead Type:

How, exactly, did you achieve your immortality? You may, of course, be a Drop-In, with no pre-existing history on Tamriel. Age and gender don't matter, and may be chosen freely.

Draugr: You were not a great mage or scholar, nor did you go in search of Daedric deals. No, you were a warrior, one who was so gifted and powerful that you simply had to come back, whether willingly or not. But you are free of will  your mind is your own, and your destiny will be made by your two hands.

Lich: Through long study and experimentation, through going down roads of the blackest magic, you have ascended. Though your skeletal form is unsettling to look at, there is a certain beauty in your form, of stripping all until only the minimum needed is left. But enough vanity, there is magic to be .

Spirit: You were dead, long since passed onto the other life, but something drew you back. A desire for vengeance, uty, or being pulled back against your will. Though you have no corporeal form, your new ghostly state of being has many benefits to it, and grants you many opportunities long denied you.

Vampire: By far one of the easiest ways of achieving immortality, there are as many erminants as there are benefits. You are now one of Molag Bal's undead spawn, a blood sucking monster who stalks its prey in the dark. Whether you received it by accident, as a gift, or from the Daedric Prince of Rape himself, it matters not.

Race:

Before your ascent into immortality, what were you originally?

Altmer: The High Elves are tall, golden skinned elves of the Summerset Isles. They are the most naturally attuned to magic and are as such capable of learning it most easily. They are resistant to disease and have a very long lifespan.

Argonian: A reptilian race from Black Marsh. Unrelated to either Man or Mer and as comfortable in water as on dry land. Covered in scales that make them slightly tougher than other races, their digitigrade legs prevent them from wearing regular shoes.

Bosmer: The small, agile Wood Elves of Valenwood, they are the greatest natural archers in all of Tamriel. Their nimbleness and natural ease within the wild areas of the world is only matched by their carnivorous and sometimes cannibalistic tendencies.

Breton: The humans of High Rock are the hybrid descendants of ancient elves and men, as hinted by their slightly pointed ears. Eccentric and naturally skilled with magic, they have a natural resistance to magic.

Dunmer: The ashen-skinned, red eyed Dark Elves of Morrowind are a tenacious people. They possess a natural resistance of fire and heat. They are known for their strength, intelligence, and quickness as well as their pride and unfriendliness.

Imperial: The cosmopolitan human natives of the province of Cyrodiil. They are known for their charm and skill at diplomacy, as well as their skill and discipline as rank and file soldiers.

Khajiit: The cat-people of Elsweyr, they are known for their natural agility and stealth. Their forms are as diverse as the phases of the two moons, ranging from a house cat, to a house sized tiger, to something similar to a Wood Elf.

Nord: The tall, hardy, fair skinned, fair haired men of Skyrim. Naturally large and strong, they are resistant to the cold with a magical affinity for the frost. They are primarily known for their fierce warriors.

Orsimer: Known as the Pariah Folk, the Orcs of Orsinium are known as talented warriors and smiths. They are strong, courageous and fearsome when roused, just as their god Malacath is.

Redguard: The dark skinned men of Hammerfell. Naturally talented warriors known for their hardiness of constitution and their fleet feet. Their independent spirits make them better skirmishers than rank and file warriors.

Other Race [100]: You are not one of those commonly found throughout Tamriel. Perhaps you are a Sload, a member of a Minotaur tribe, or one of the last Dwemer? Maybe you are even a Giant or a Maormer? That is up for you to decide, though it must be something that already exists within Nirn.

Dragon [400]: One of the Children of Akatosh, one who was not content with their innate immortality, in search of something greater? You are one of these mighty beasts, one whose body is now as immortal as your soul. Sturdy scales, powerful fangs, great wings, and a mighty Voice, there are few who could hope match you.

Locations:

Roll 1d12 to determine your starting location, or pay [50] to choose. Your starting time does not matter, and can be anywhere from the Merethic Era to the Fourth Era.

1) Black Marsh: The dense swampland home of the Argonians to the South-East of Tamriel. A lush land filled with violently dangerous predators and poisonous plants. Wild and impossible to cultivate, there are few true settlements.

2) Cyrodiil: The Imperial province in the center of Tamriel. Predominantly temperate in climate with large cities including the vast Imperial City, the cosmopolitan center of the Empire and its governance.

3) Elsweyr: The home of the Khajiit, situated on the southern coast of Tamriel. There are few cities, the rest made up of arid badlands and subtropical forests.

4) Hammerfell: Situated in the West of Tamriel and dominated by the vast Alik'r desert. The Redguards and other peoples who call it home live predominantly in the large port-cities and towns.

5) High Rock: The Breton's home province to the North-West of Tamriel. The coastal regions are temperate with loose forests, further inland the region becomes more mountainous.

6) Morrowind: The North-East province of the Dunmer is dominated by the volcanic island of Vvardenfell. Separated by the Velothi Mountains, the lands of Morrowind have unique and hostile climates and ecosystems.

7) Orsinium: The newly rebuilt city-state and kingdom of Orsinium is positioned within High Rock and is the new home to the Orcs. It was won in a duel by the Orc hero Gortwog gro-Nagorm and prospered under his rule.

8) Skyrim: The northernmost, cold and mountainous province of Skyrim is home to the Nords. Relatively mild southern regions and cold, permanently frozen areas to the North.

9) Summerset Isles: The large, South-Westerly island home of the Altmer. Full of idyllic and clear pastures and several large cities with all manner of peculiar architecture.

10) Valenwood: A densely forested, subtropical province to the South-East of Tamriel, this is the home of the Bosmer. Sea of endless green, a maze of foliage with half-hidden cities and giant, migratory trees.

General Perks:

Undeath [Free]: No matter which path you went down, nor how you went about achieving it, the end result is all the same. You are an undead being, and with that comes many perks. You are effectively immortal, so long as nothing comes around to murder you. You have what is effectively unlimited stamina, you are not affected by mundane poisons, and you are no longer inhibited by pain. Additionally, you have no need to eat, drink, breathe, or even sleep. Enough damage to your form will still eventually kill you, as well as the destruction of your head, so be mindful of that. You are also susceptible to Restoration spells, and as such cannot utilize normal healing spells.

Soundtrack of Tamriel [50]: With the passage of time, people, languages, and even places will change. And yet, music will always be a constant, especially for you. You may at any time pull up a mental playlist of songs from The Elder Scrolls series, and will find new songs or remixes over time.

Timeless Beauty [50]: Though undeath has many benefits, looks are usually not one of them, often being reduced to monstrous or decaying visages of your former self. No longer, as not only do you look just as fleshy as before your undead rebirth, you are even more beautiful or handsome than before. No one would be able to notice your undead state without picking up on some subtle hints, or you just telling them.

Eternal Outlook [100]: When one has eternity to look forward to, it can be hard to stave off the inevitable boredom that comes with such a long unlife. But not you, though. You can handle the march of time well, never tiring of the joys of life and never finding your emotions dulled, even after millenia have passed. What is the point of immortality if you cannot enjoy it?

Unchanging Self [100]: Over time, people change. That is not unnatural, and is even healthy, but there are those who worry about too much change, about becoming unrecognizable from who they were previously. You are not one of them, as you will always remain yourself, only changing for the better. A kind and gentle man will remain just as kind even after centuries of bloody warfare.

Head Cultist [200]: Power is an addictive substance, drawing in the powerless like moths to a flame. And what greater power is as sought after than immortality? There is no shortage of fools willing to do anything for a shot at eternal life, and that is something you are prepared to take advantage of. Not only could you expertly manage a hidden society or secretive faction all by yourself, with all the problems and headaches that would entail, but you excel at actually keeping it a secret.

Summoner [200]: There are forces beyond mortal comprehension, within the relentless waters of Oblivion. Ones that allow access to avenues of great power. You have made a pact with one of the Daedric Princes, allowing you to summon Daedra under their control even in worlds and universes far beyond Oblivion's reach, all at a fraction of the cost it would normally have been. Additionally, you know a ritual that will allow you to open an Oblivion Gate to your Prince's realm.

Necromage [400]: You were born with a gift, or perhaps a blessing? Either way, your new state of undeath has interacted with your nascent Spark in an interesting way, granting you much power in your new state of being. Simply put, all of your magic is twice as effective against undead, as well as your enchantments. This goes for yourself as well, as beneficial magics and enchantments are much better for you. But that's not all, as you will find that all of your perks, all of them, are half again as powerful as they were before. I pity any who think they can stand up against you...

Draugr Perks:

Discounts for Draugr are 50% off, with the [100] perk being free.

Zombie [Exclusive Draugr]: From flesh and bone, you were risen. Though you may lack the skill with magic that others have, it is in physicality where you truly shine. You are much stronger than before, able to bring out your full power without the worry of damaging your body. Additionally, your toughened skin has made you much more difficult to damage.

Wight [100]: With all of the benefits your new form has brought you, it is important that you remember the detriments as well. One of which would be the loss of your natural healing, making any wound you take that much more dangerous. Well, normally. You are different, as you can regenerate from most damage over the course of a few days, good as new. It can't regrow severed limbs, but holding your severed appendage to your stump for a while will allow it to reconnect and heal. Decapitation will still kill you.

Scourge [200]: Amongst the many warriors across Nirn, there are few foes as dangerous yet fragile as mages, those who bend magicka to their will. It is quite difficult to fight an opponent who can set you on fire from a hundred yards away, but it seems as though your undeath has partially solved your problem. Any hostile magic is half as effective against you, with weaker spells failing entirely.

Overlord [400]: Though your combat prowess was great enough for you to be brought back from death, now it is something of legends. You were a highly capable combatant in life, be it one on one or against entire groups, and it has only gotten better in your undeath. Now it wouldn't be unreasonable for you to fight off a small army all on your lonesome and emerge the uncontested victor.

Dragon Priest [600]: Ah, it seems as though you were not actually lacking in magic. You must have trained up in the north with the Tongues, for you are a master of the Thu'um, or the Storm Voice. This specific branch of Tonal Magic allows you to alter the very fabric of reality with just a few words, conjuring blasts of force, freezing enemies solid, and even commanding the weather. And due to your new state of being, you will suffer none of the drawbacks of overusing this power.

Lich Perks:

Discounts for Lich are 50% off, with the [100] perk being free.

Skeleton [Exclusive Lich]: You have been stripped of everything unnecessary, becoming an animated skeleton powered by your own will and magic. Beyond the benefit of no pesky organs or fleshy bits, you are now completely immune to all poisons, both mundane and magical, and very resistant to slashing damage.

Necromancy [100]: One does not become a lich by accident. It takes years of study and dedication to mastering the art of necromancy, lest one mess up and render themselves a mindless husk like so many others. You are one such person, an expert in the dark arts capable of ripping out souls and reanimating the dead as your own dedicated servants. You may have experience in other schools of magic, but it is necromancy where you truly shine.

Ideal Master [200]: The power offered by the Ideal Masters of the Soul Cairn is a tempting prize, leading the ambitious and foolhardy necromancers to their certain doom. But you? You knew what you were doing, knew just how to deal with those entities, and are one of the few that prospered. You are able to summon the powerful undead found within the Soul Cairn, from the common Bonemen to the powerful Keepers, all at a fraction of the magicka cost it would normally take.

Wolf Queen [400]: What is dead may never truly die, a strange saying that is nonetheless very accurate when talking about liches. There are many tales of those who were resurrected many times through either their followers or their own mastery of magic. You are one of these powerful mages, and as such you can return to unlife once every ten years, and will reset after each Jump. .

King of Worms [600]: Mannimarco is often credited as the first modern lich as we know them today, and is one of the most powerful mages to have existed. Much like him, you have reached the peak of necromancy. All undead you raise are much more powerful, durable, faster, and more intelligent than they otherwise would be. Additionally, there is no limit to how long your undead may be animated, nor how many you can control at any given time. With such power at your fingertips, it would be wise to fear you.

Spirit Perks:

Discounts for Spirit are 50% off, with the [100] perk being free.

Ethereal [Exclusive Spirit]: You are no longer a being of the physical, bound by it's laws and realities. As a spirit, you are immune to all mundane forms of damage, be they slashing at you with a sword, or dropping you off a cliff. The only way to harm you in your new ghostly state would be with silver or Daedric weaponry, enchanted items, or through magic.

Intangible [100]: As a being no longer strictly bound to the physical world, many doors have opened up, just waiting for you to take advantage of them. One such advantage is your newfound ability to become intangible, capable of passing through walls, furniture, and even people. The only way to bar you from somewhere would be through magic, be it a spell or an enchantment.

Wisp Mother [200]: There are many legends of wisps, of how they lure the unsuspecting into the arms of ghostly women who feed on their life force. It seems like the legends are not incorrect, as you are capable of summoning wisps to your side. They can drain the health and stamina from enemies, healing you in the process. They can also disguise themselves as you, though it will only be an illusion.

Silence of the Grave [400]: Possibly the worst thing about death that you remember was the silence. The unending quiet, only your thoughts with you as you lay trapped within the void. This experience has changed you, granting you a power feared by most. You can unleash a curse upon a target that silences them, not only taking away their voice but also their ability to use magic. This may only be temporary, at most a minute or two, but it's enough to render many powerful entities into harmless bags of flesh.

Overtaken [600]: It was your will that brought you back from the realm of the dead, your resolve that allows you to retain your free will. Not many possess the same amount of willpower, which is quite unfortunate for them. Why? Because you can now possess people and objects, controlling them and their actions as if it was yourself should their willpower be found lacking. You will retain full access to your abilities, and can access your vessel's memories. Why, you could even possess dragons, should you be powerful enough.

Vampire Perks:

Discounts for Vampire are 50% off, with the [100] perk being free.

Bloodline [Exclusive Vampire]: While there are many who seek out vampirism, it is just as important figuring out what kind of vampirism they want. There are many vampiric bloodlines, from the northern Volkihar, those of the Cyrodilic Order, the childish Telboth, and many more. Some common traits within most bloodlines are the need to drink blood, and a weakness to both fire and the sun. You have the benefit of choosing exactly which vampiric bloodline you are a part of.

Among Sheep [100]: Honestly, it's kind of hilarious what you can get away with should you be charming enough. Convincing guards to look the other way, have merchants bring in some less than legal merchandise, convince the unwashed peasants to do what you want in return for immortality. You are charismatic enough to do all of these, and possibly more. But a pretty speech won't help you against someone determined enough.

Stone Shaper [200]: Gargoyles are actually quite fascinating, as they are less creatures and more living statues. All it takes is a skilled sculptor and talented mage. Someone much like you. You are a master stonemason, chiseling out lifelike statues that you can then imbue with arcane energies in order to animate them. Additionally, you are capable of summoning any gargoyles you've created to your side for a miniscule magicka cost.

Cloak of Night [400]: Vampires are the ultimate creatures of the night, unmatched predators that can be deadly in a fight, and even deadlier when unseen. You are a master of stealth, knowing just how to avoid detection to the point where few could reliably notice you when you try. This is in no way helped by the fact that you make absolutely no sounds when moving unless you want to.

Vampire Lord [600]: You are not some freshly turned fledgeling, but a proper Vampire Lord, one who has been around for centuries. No matter what bloodline you hail from, all of your vampiric abilities are at the very peak. No matter what, all will be able to shapeshift into two or three mundane animals, turn into mist, hypnotize others with a glance, possess flawless control over bats, and even a limited ability to alter the weather. In addition, all of your vampiric weaknesses have been heavily reduced, if not removed completely, and you are no longer weakened by the sun.

General Items:

All Origins receive an additional [300] to spend in this section only. You may freely import any related items you own at your discretion.

Burial Urn [Free]: What you now possess is a small urn with your name on it, only around the size of the average horse skull. Inside will always be a few gold coins, a gem or two, as well as the ashes of a dead person. These will restock when you place the lid back on.

TES Games [50]: All stories must have a medium in order to be experienced, and in this case it's through games. You now possess a high quality gaming setup with all Elder Scrolls games in your possession. The best part is that these games will never experience harmful bugs and won't crash, no matter how many mods you end up installing.

Undead Aesthetics [50]: Your Warehouse is an integral part of your being a Jumper, so shouldn't it also receive an upgrade in celebration of your undeath? Yes, you may now have your Warehouse, as well as any properties or items you own, take on a dark and haunting aesthetic fitting for your new form.

Life Return Ritual [100]: Well then, it seems as though you have taken a page out of Falion's journal, quite literally I might add. You are now in possession of a small book containing various rituals meant to return the various types of Undead back into their original mortal selves. This can also be used to affect undead creatures in any future worlds you may decide to visit. Not many who embraced undeath may be so willing to undergo such a ritual, though.

Magical Enchantment [100/50]: Only fools go around without the very best equipment they can acquire, and you are no fool. Upon any item you own, you may add a single, powerful enchantment with each purchase of this option. This cannot be used to acquire unique enchantments, such as the effect of the Wabbajack. This option may be taken multiple times, at a discount after the first purchase.

Alchemy Tower [200]: When you have eternity to look forward to, it's not unreasonable to believe that you'll pick up a few hobbies. A popular one, it seems, is the magical science of alchemy. You are now in possession of a tower devoted to this skill, possessing all manner of alchemical devices and recipes, as well as a large garden and storage area for practically every alchemical reagent found in these lands. These ingredients will restock after a week, so no need to fear running out. Additionally, any potions you create here will be twice as powerful.

Enchanting Tower [200]: If you aren't a fan of going out and finding, buying, or looting powerful enchanted gear, then you'll probably be wanting to do it yourself. This tower is completely devoted to the art of enchanting, with a high-quality enchanting setup, many books on the subject, and a replenishing stock of soul gems. You possess fifty of each kind of soul gem, all of which restock after a week, yet none of them are filled. Additionally, any enchantments you create here will be twice as powerful.

Daedric Artifact [400]: Questing heroes of all stripes seek after the fabled Daedric artifacts for their potent combat and magical benefits. Is it any wonder, when each and every one of them are imbued with the power of a Daedric Prince? You should consider yourself quite lucky, as you are now in possession of one of these artifacts. Normally, these artifacts will randomly leave their owner, either returning to their Prince or into the possession of someone else, yet this one seems strangely loyal to you, refusing to leave your side. Which one is up to you, from Dawnbreaker to Wabbajack to the Black Star to the Oghma Infinium and everything in between.

Draugr Items:

Ancient Nord Set [100]: You were entombed with your armor in death, and now it will protect you in unlife. You are now in possession of a high-quality set of ancient nordic armor and weapons, as well as daily replenishing arrows, each just as effective as the day they were forged.

Ebony Gear [200]: And yet, for as good as nordic steel is, there are times when you need more. Crafted from ebony, you now have a fine set of ebony armor, as well as a shield and a single weapon of your choosing. All of these will be in a design of your choosing.

Shield of Ysgramor [400]: Used by Ysgramor and crafted for him by Ahzidal, this shield is a powerful artifact. Not only does it grant the wearer an increased resistance to frost, it also imbues them with a healing factor. But it's ultimate ability is being able to unleash the frost of Atmora itself, coating the user in a powerful frost cloak that harms anyone and anything nearby.

Dragon Priest Masks [400]: Granted to the Dragon Priests of Skyrim by the very Dragons themselves, each Dragon Priest Mask was a masterpiece, and imbued with unique enchantments. Hevnoraak, Krosis, Morokei, Nahkriin, Otar, Rahgot, Vokun, Volsung, Ahzidal, Dukaan, Zakhriisos. You are now the owner of all of these masks, with all the powers they grant.

Lich Items:

Black Soul Gems [100]: During your studies of necromancy, you have discovered that there were few items as useful in the dark arts than black soul gems. These are the only type of soul gems that can handle the souls of the mortal races. How lucky you are, then, that you are now in possession of twenty replenishing black soul gems, each filled and replenishing after a week.

Graveyard [200]: If necromancy is all about raising the dead, then any proper necromancer would have a steady supply of bodies to resurrect. In your possession is a fairly sizable graveyard, containing one hundred graves in total. Any undead raised from here will generally be more powerful than normal, with some even being buried with enchanted gear. These graves contain each of the ten main races found within Tamriel, and will replenish after a month.

Necromancer Amulet [400]: As with most artifacts associated with necromancy, this one was believed to have been crafted by Mannimarco, and it's easy to see why. This enchanted amulet heavily boosts the magicka reserves and grants an easier use of necromancy to any that wears it. Unfortunately, it stunts the regeneration of any living thing that wears it. Luckily, this drawback is ineffective when worn by the undead.

Staff of Worms [600]: The ebony staff once owned by the King of Worms, Mannimarco. Not only does it greatly empower any spells channeled through it, but it makes any of the undead you have risen far more physically capable than they otherwise would have been, easily the equivalent of ten others. Additionally, it allows you to perfectly see and hear through your undead's eyes and ears, somehow.

Spirit Items:

Ancient Coins [100]: Did you really expect that septims were the only currency found within Tamriel? No, many cultures before the Third Empire utilized coins as currency, and you now have proof of that. One hundred coins from some ancient or far off civilization, they're more valuable as collectors items then anything, but at least they'll replenish each week.

Phantom Armor [200]: When you died, you died in your armor. And when you returned, your armor returned with you, now possessing new properties. In addition to its new spectral look, it has brought the coldness of the grave with it. Whenever you're struck by an enemy, the attacker will suffer frost damage equal to the damage they dealt to you.

Ghostblade [400]: Just like your armor, when you died you died with your weapon in your hand. Now that you have arisen with it, it has gained new ghostly properties. In addition to dealing a large amount of frost damage to your target, it can also bypass armor and even skin completely, damaging the insides of your target directly.

Portal [600]: With your newfound existence, a question must be asked. Now that you came back from the afterlife to the mortal realm, can you do the reverse? With this purchase, that answer is yes. You now own a portal into your chosen afterlife, be it the eternal feasts of Sovngarde, or even a Daedric Realm should you so desire. No inhabitants can cross over to your side without your express and willing permission, so that should ease some of your worries.

Vampire Items:

Vials of Blood [100]: Sometimes, it can be quite the chore, going out in search of mortals when you're feeling a little bit peckish. And yet, though the wonders of alchemy, these twenty vials contain fresh blood, each replenishing after a week. In addition to feeding you like normal blood would, it also acts like a healing potion. I wouldn't offer any to your mortal companions, however.

Royal Attire [200]: As an existence head and shoulders above mortals, it would only make sense that you would wear the best. Indeed, this elegant set of armor is just as useful as it is intimidating. Not only will you find that it's much more durable than expected, but it is enchanted to boost your vampiric abilities, as well as lessening the effect the sun has on you.

Bloodstone Chalice [400]: A relic created by a vampiric mage of old, this chalice is utterly unique in that it will never run out of fresh blood. But if that was the only draw, then it would be a rather poor relic. No, upon drinking from this chalice, a vampire would find their vampiric abilities doubled for three days. Drinking from it will also heal the vampire, as well as restoring any spent magicka.

Vampiric Castle [600]: After many decades or even centuries of unlife, it is not uncommon for a vampire to gain their very own castle. You are one of those, owning your own dark castle perfectly fit for your vampiric self. In addition to all the amenities you'd expect from a castle, the windows block out the harmful effects of the sun, there are many replenishing barrels of blood in the basement, and there are dozens of gargoyles to protect the area from any invaders. There's also an alter to Molag Bal, where he can communicate with you and vice versa, but that's entirely optional.

Companions:

Inner Circle [50/100/200]: Eternal unlife can be dreadfully boring, so why not bring some friends along for the ride? With this, you may import or create 1, 4, or 8 companions respectively. Each companion receives 800 cp to spend on race, perks, and items. You could alternatively use this to have canon characters become companions, but they will still need some convincing to join you.

Undead Society [300]: But variety is the spice of life, is it not? If you don't want to be limited to just eight companions, then take this option to import any number of companions you desire into this world. Each companion receives 800 cp to spend on race, perks, and items.

Undead Legions [Free]: Well, you wouldn't want your followers to be left in the dust when you have conquered mortality. By choosing this, you may import any number of followers to benefit from any of the forms of undeath found in here, as well as gaining a history in this world.

Arvak [Optionally Free]: Every man needs a mount, and for an undead like yourself there is no better option. Freed from the Soul Cairn, this fully trained skeletal warhorse is now yours. In addition to being able to summon them to your side whenever you desire, they always seem to be faster than you, no matter what you try to do to make up the difference.

Bone Hawk [50]: These predatory birds are actually a type of undead creature, and can typically be found as pets or familiars to various undead. Yours is bonded to you, obeying your commands and allowing you to see through its eyes and ears. This bird especially loves it when given red meat, even though they don't need to eat.

Death Hound [50]: Death Hounds are used as guardians by vampires. How they came to be is unknown, but their bite is as cold as the grave. This one in particular is exceptionally trained, and will obey your orders to the best of its abilities. Be sure to give it plenty of belly rubs, yeah?

Vampire Princess [50]: Sealed within an ancient tomb in the frozen peaks of Skyrim, Serana is an interesting case. Quick-witted and sarcastic, she is a Daughter of Coldharbour, one of the few Pure-blooded Vampires, and trained in both Alchemy and Necromancy, though her skill in Destruction is nothing to scoff at.

Werewolf Mercenary [50]: A proud member of Skyrim's Companions, Farkas may not be the brightest, but he more than makes up for it in pure might and his skill with a blade. Mix that with his mighty werewolf form, and there are few enemies that can match his strength.

Gatekeeper [100]: I'm not sure where you found this, and frankly, I don't want to know. This flesh atronach is an exceptionally powerful being, crafted in order to protect the Shivering Isles from any who would dare invade. In addition to its immense strength, it's also just stupidly durable, and highly resistant to magic. Luckily, it will listen to you.

Skeletal Dragon [100]: There are few creatures as mighty as the Dragons, and that strength permeates their very bones. Literally, as they are considered more durable as refined ebony. So I'm certain you can find some uses for this animated dragon skeleton, which is skill capable of flight, somehow, and can only use the shouts Unrelenting Force, Fire Breath, and Frost Breathe.

Durnehviir [200]: Bound to serve the Ideal Masters of the Soul Cairn for eternity, this dragon has found himself free from that awful realm, all thanks to you. Durnehviir is a powerful necromancer, capable of summoning undead legions from the Soul Cairn and ripping out a person's soul using the Thu'um. He also loves a good challenge, and would welcome any chance to spar with powerful opponents.

Mannimarco [200]: The King of Worms himself, there are no necromancers as widely known or as powerful as Mannimarco. Though he does not have the power granted to him by being the Necromancer's Moon, he's still a millenia old lich who has spent a long time acquiring knowledge and power. Perhaps he will share that knowledge with you, if you manage to impress him.

Drawbacks:

Continuity [+0]: If this is not your first trip to Nirn, then this option is for you. This ensures that your previous actions in The Elder Scrolls universe have carried over in some form.

Supplement Mode [+0]: Should you desire something more from your stay here, then you can use this as a supplement for another Elder Scrolls Jump. Alternatively, you could use this to bring undeath into another world, separated from The Elder Scrolls entirely. It would certainly be a surprise seeing a draconic vampire in a world of shinobi.

Dead Aura [+100]: There is something unnatural about you, Jumper, something that you cannot hide. You permeate an aura of death that makes living entities very uneasy in your presence, while most animals won't trust you and might even attack you. It also doesn't help that plantlife seems to wither and die quickly around you.

Extended Stay [+100]: Ordinarily, you would be spending at least ten years here before being given the choice to stay here or move on. Now, you must stay an additional ten years before being given the choice. This drawback can be taken multiple times, but you will only benefit from taking it nine times.

Sensory Deprivation [+100]: You had expected undeath to be an improvement, and yet there was one unexpected drawback. Your senses are dead. The wind on your face, the bite of the cold, the taste of food, even the sensation of pain is nonexistent. Many have gone mad from such an existence, will you join their number?

Black Sacrament [+200]: You seem to have angered someone so badly that they have performed the Black Sacrament. The Dark Brotherhood now has a contract to kill you. They will send at least one assassin after you during your time here, but they might not give up so easily.

Looking Back [+200]: You took your chance for immortality in order to live long into the future, and yet you can't help but look back at the past. You miss the old days, unable to look away from the past to see the hope of the future. Sometimes, you don't even feel like continuing onwards.

Solar Tyrant [+200]: Much like the spawn of Molag Bal, you have found yourself with a powerful weakness to sunlight, rendering you nearly powerless under its harsh rays. Should you be a vampire yourself, then this is even worse, as any exposure to sunlight will kill you.

Powerless [+300]: The delicate metaphysics of the Aurbis don't seem to mix well with your other powers. You will be stripped of all outside powers and abilities, leaving only your mundane skills, what you bought here, and anything else you might have gained in the Elder Scrolls universe.

Soul Trapped [+300]: It seems that, like a certain dragon, you are now a prisoner of the Soul Cairn, unable to leave through your own power. Even if you were to find a way to leave, you would get progressively weaker until eventually, you'll cease to exist, and fail your Chain.

Vigilant [+300]: The Vigilants of Stendarr are an order dedicated to hunting down any Daedra or undead they can, in order to ensure that an event like the Oblivion Crisis never happens again. Unfortunately, they or a similarly powerful and skilled group has been made aware of your existence and contain knowledge of your capabilities, and are doing everything in their power in order to end you.

Ending:

Stay: Have you found the perfect place to spend eternity in?

Go Home: Do you crave the past you left behind so long ago?

Continue: Or was this just a small stop on your journey?

Notes:

-All undead weaknesses and drawbacks, like not being able to use Restoration spells on yourself, will be removed upon completion of the Jump.

-You do not have to be an actual [Draugr] if you don't want to. You could just be a particularly sentient zombie. Same thing with [Spirits], as you could be one of the souls from Sovngarde dragged back into the mortal plane if that's your wish.

-All enchanted items purchased here will never run out of charge.

-Any item found here that is already enchanted has its enchantments boosted far beyond what was seen in the games.

-About [Magical Enchantment]:

- It adds an enchantment equal to a maxed out Skyrim player, without the use of potions or exploits, and includes enchantments found in Oblivion and Morrowind.
- You totally can stack effects, allowing you to cast Destruction spells for zero magicka or a bullshit level of resistance.
- If you choose a constant effect like Detect Life, Invisibility, or Levitation, then you can activate it and turn it off at will.
- I would say that Increase Attribute enchantments would be worth around 50 points.

-The [Bloodstone Chalice] can either be the size shown in-game, or it can be hand held. Your choice.

-You can use [Supplement Mode] to make this into a supplement multiple times for multiple Jumps, but you will not get any CP except through Drawbacks.

-[Looking Back] is basically chronic depression, mixed with a yearning for the 'good old days.'

-When in doubt, fanwank. It just works.

-Have the day that you deserve~